

In Bogs

from Mon petit Mont Blanc by Paul Éluard

Nathan Turczan

Conjuré lentement

8

$\text{♩} = 100$

$\text{♩} = 67$

In bogs black

riten.

pp

glassy

mf > mp

cresc.

4

herbs are threat- ened by the ma gi cian they ref

mp

6

rit.

spooky

main in the mud and the dark and the soft ness of their

p

8

a tempo

flesh as the day be- gins to em broi- der

mf

11 unfairly poco a poco rit.

bit-ter clouds bit-ter clouds in 14 riten.

skies in bogs we re- main

pp

Mon petit Mont Blanc

La petite personne noire a froid. À peine si trois lumières bougent encore, à peine si les planètes, malgré leur voilure complète, avancent en flottant : depuis trois heures il n'y a plus de vent, depuis trois heures la gravitation a cessé d'exister. Dans les tourbières, les herbes noires sont menacées par le prestidigitateur et restent en terre avec les chauves et la douceur de leur chair que le jour commence à broder de nuages amers.

As crunched into English by google translate

The little black person is cold. Barely if three lights still move, Scarcely had the planets, in spite of their complete wings, advanced in floating motion: For three hours there has been no wind, for three hours the gravitation has Ceased to exist. In the peat bogs, black grasses are threatened by The conjurer and remain in the ground with the bald and sweetness of their Flesh that the day begins to embroider with bitter clouds.